

Hyun Swanson Bio

Hyun is a seasoned benefits professional with 20 years of experience. Early in her career, she was as a consultant at Arthur Andersen and Ernst & Young, helping clients design and implement competitive benefit programs. She then moved into an internal HR role as global benefits manager at AES Corporation, overseeing health and retirement plans strategy and administration.

Hyun joined the University Of California's Office of the President in 2013 as Manager of Benefits Education. Among her many responsibilities is managing the system wide retirement savings plan communications and education program, which features a robust set of resources to help UC faculty and staff build retirement readiness. "Success" to her means that employees understand UC's generous retirement benefits, as well as make smart financial decisions that will ensure that their money lasts through retirement.

Hyun holds a BA in Economics from Johns Hopkins and a MPH from Yale. An east coast native, she currently lives with her husband and two kids in beautiful Irvine, CA.
